
Title: The Recovery

Author: Jerno Milik

The remaining poeple slowly recovered. From the remaining masses
a leader emerged.
Strong and Confident, Ilshen took to organizing the people
and restoring order.
Ilshen began the rebuilding of civilization when she was only 22 years
old. Little is stated about her other then
her undying devotion to make sure all was put right in the world. We hope to find more writings
about this young woman who started the rebuilding of the world. The people gathered in the northeast area of the world and established a city on a mountain side calling it Montor. Long ago in Sosaria another town of the same name had existed in, Ironically, the lands ruled by Lord British himself.
At first I thought the name was just a reuse of a familiar
town but you can translate the name to mean "Mountain Passion". The later seems to ring true. In other texts it is listed as Mont-Or.
The later name would befit a new city with people who survived
such a catastrophe.

This new city took about 40 years to complete. It was, by all accounts, a paradise of city and mountain with waterfalls that cut between buildings and the mountainside. In the years that followed Ilshen and a council of scholars set up laws and government and peace reigned. Then 20 years after its completion Montor was destroyed. We still are missing pieces of all that transpired but it seems the mountain Montor was built on had a volcanic eruption. The city's present state would back that up fully. It would also appear that the people knew it was going to happen and evacuated.